Don't Always Spell

Office Competence

Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson has been tagged the official goat for our military disaster in Korea — and so everybody in Washington is shooting at him.

Congressional factors of both parties, plus veterans' organizations, are suggesting that President Truman replace him with somebody like Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

There is an ominous silence among Democratic leaders which bodes ill for Mr. Johnson, just when he needs political backing most.

However, his greatest error may be no more than the simple sin of talking too much. Once upon a time he popped off about our being able to whip Joe Stalin whenever the occasion arose — and shortly afterward the occasion, or a reasonable facsimile thereof, did arise.

Now we're committed to a war in Korea and we're doing badly — and everything Mr. Johnson said was wrong.

Actually, the American public had a hand in this trouble. We were tired after World War II, and disarmed in unwise haste.

We did, however, have the right to expect our informed leaders to tell us loudly and clearly if we were wrong. We got debate on the subject, but no convincing warning. Rather, Secretary Johnson was telling us only a month or so before the Red thrust into South Korea that the road we were traveling was all right.

But Mr. Johnson, in all fairness, was scarcely qualified to be a military or diplomatic prophet. His main claim to the Defense Secretary post was that in the 1948 election he raised an extraordinary amount of money for President Truman's campaign — and so the administration is politically indebted to him as it is to few men.

Yet he is a man of personal courage and great vigor. The error in Washington, if there is one, may be that he was merely thrust into the wrong job.

Never forget, furthermore, that the country has a suspicion the main trouble traces back more to diplomatic than military preparedness failure. The military does no more — in a democracy — than political and diplomatic leaders tell it to do.

2 Brazilians Here on Farm Study Tour

Two Brazilian International Farm Youth Exchange students, Joao Meirelles and Sergio Meirelles, are completing a three-week stay on Hemstead County farms today.

Joao and Sergio have lived on farms in Hemstead county studying farming methods and the way of life in this area. They have taken part in the various farming operations being carried on at this time of year on the farms where they have stayed. This program is under the direction of the Agricultural Extension Service, and these two young men were sponsored in Hemstead County 4-H Clubs, Home Rotary Club, and farm families, as an education and good will project, according to Byron Huddleston, assistant county agent.

During the past three weeks Joao has spent four days in each of the following homes: W. M. Dillard, Saratoga; H. E. Nolen, Route 3, Prescott; B. J. Ellis, DeAnn; Lester Kent, Patmos; H. A. Dillard, Route 1, Ozan.

Sergio has stayed in the home of Allen Downs Columbus; Dale Woodson, Route 5, Prescott; Clyde Cummings, Route 3, Prescott; Lloyd Smith, Patmos; Dale Hunt, Route 1, Hope.

Joao and Sergio are leaving Hemstead County today for Nevada county where they will continue to live and work with farm families.

5 Arkansans Die Violently in Weekend

By The Associated Press
Four Arkansans lost their lives in mishaps in other states Sunday, and a drowning took one life in Arkansas.

Three members of a Monette, Ark., family, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Pruitt and their son, J. Pruitt, were killed in an automobile accident in Missouri, seven miles north of Blytheville, Ark.

W. D. Pruitt was injured seriously and his wife was seriously hurt when their car and one driven by Mrs. Hubert Utley, Steele, Mo., collided. Mrs. Utley and her three children were slightly injured.

Shirley (Judy) Hyndrick, 12, of Hickory, Ark., drowned in a lake at Lake View, Miss. The girl, who couldn't swim, slipped off a float about 25 yards offshore and a playmate's cries for help went unheeded by the crowd. Her body was recovered within 20 minutes, but efforts to revive her were unsuccessful.

Albert Ballard, 17-year-old Hot Springs swimmer, drowned while swimming in big Mazon creek, nine miles west of Hot Springs. Witnesses told Sheriff I. G. Brown that the boy had been holding to the side of a boat and "just let loose and disappeared." His body was recovered about four hours later.

Income Taxes to Go Up Due to War; But the Effective Date of Rise Is Uncertain

By ALEXANDER R. GEROGIE
(For James Marlow)

Washington, July 31 (AP)—Congress is set to increase income taxes. But how closely it follows President Truman's recommendations for a tax boost may hinge on the Korean war situation in the next week or so.

If the battle turns definitely in favor of United States forces, there will be considerable sentiment for postponing an increase in individual taxes until the beginning of the new year.

The President recommended that the tax boost for individuals become effective October 1, and that the increase in corporation taxes go back to cover all of 1950.

If the Korean situation doesn't improve there will be heavy pressure for quick action.

Lion Oil Company Earnings Up 52 Per Cent in 6 Months

El Dorado, July 31 (AP)—Lion Oil company earnings increased 52 per cent in the first six months of 1950.

T. M. Martin, president of the Petroleum company, announced yesterday that income for the first six months of the year was $9,834,831, and that earnings after taxes were $7,147,607, which he said was a 52 per cent increase of the comparable period of 1949.

He said earnings after taxes for the six month period equal $3.05 a share of outstanding stock as compared with earnings of $2.01 a share for the corresponding period of 1949.

King Offers to Quit, for Belgian Peace

Brussels, Belgium, July 31 (AP)—Premier Jean Duvieusart declared today that King Leopold had offered to temporarily delegate his royal powers to Crown Prince Baudouin.

The premier said the king made the offer on condition the opposition Socialists withdraw their political and economic demands and make them later through parliamentary channels.

This announcement came after both Duvieusart and Socialist Leader Max Buset had conferred with Leopold this morning at Laeken palace.

The king's decision was disclosed as the crisis over his return from exile, ten days ago threatened to plunge the nation into civil war.

The king's decision was reported already circulating in Brussels. Three anti-Leopoldists were killed by gendarmes last night in a wave of violence and strikes which had paralyzed the nation's economy.

Buset had hinted before going to the palace that the hour of Leopold's abdication was close at hand.

Buset held an hour's conference with the ruler he had promised never to see unless it was to arrange for his surrender to the throne.

The premier declined to say whether the hoped for solution would be the king's formal abdication or a milder delegation of his powers to Crown Prince Baudouin.

Negotiations were proceeding in a powder keg atmosphere.

The pro-Leopold government admitted that crippling nationwide strikes were spreading. It said

MacArthur, in Formosa, Talks to Chiang

Taipei, Formosa, July 31 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his top commanders flew into Formosa today for a war council with Chiang Kai-shek on Nationalist China's role in the Asian conflicts.

They began talking immediately after lunch at Chiang's Grass mountain retreat outside to Taipei. The nature of the conversations was not disclosed.

An informed source, however, said Chiang was expected to renew his offer of 33,000 Chinese Nationalist troops to fight in Korea.

Chiang also was expected to press for a more active role in his war against the Chinese Reds.

President Truman, in ordering the U. S. Seventh fleet to protect Formosa soon after the outbreak in Korea, told the Chinese Nationalists to cease attacks on the Red China mainland.

The Nationalists did—until yesterday. Then their warplanes hit 500 Chinese Red small boats near the mainland port of Amoy opposite Formosa.

The Nationalists said they sank or damaged 150 of the craft in "self-defense" of Quemoy, their small garrison island near Amoy.

U. S. officials have said that purely defensive attacks are not banned. However, there was no explanation of whether the Nationalist air blows had U. S. approval.

Chiang was expected to tell MacArthur of Nationalist China's needs for arms and ammunition, spare parts and new planes for his air force and stronger naval units.

Foreign and Chinese circles alike saw strong significance in the timing of MacArthur's visit—the eve of Russia's return to the United Nations security council at Lake Success and assumption of the chairmanship of the U. N. for the month of August.

In Tokyo, MacArthur's headquarters said only that the visit to Formosa was made in connection with President Truman's order to protect the big Nationalist island from a Chinese Communist invasion.

The Reds had massed large fleets and tens of thousands of troops along the China coast 100 miles east of Formosa. An invasion was expected momentarily when North Korean Reds touched off war in the Orient and President Truman drew his historic line protecting Formosa.

CRITICAL TRIANGLE—If Communist troops continue to push U. S. and South Korean forces toward the southeast corner of the peninsula, the defenders are expected to make a final stand to hold the Taegu-Pusan-Yosu triangle, shown cross-hatched on map. The enemy must be kept beyond artillery range of the vital supply and reinforcement beachhead. Arrows show basic goals of Red strategy: (1) to smash down the Kumchon-Taegu-Pusan road; with flanking attack continuing the defenders to this narrow corridor; (2) drive from southwest corner across to Pusan; (3) a drive down the east coast toward Pusan, with possible secondary thrust to cut Kumchon-Taegu-Pusan road.

Hal Boyle Goes Along on an Air Strafing Raid — a Ride He Says He'll Never Forget

By HAL BOYLE
An Advanced Air Strip in Korea (AP)—We sincerely hope our little air control mission did some good for the boys on the ground at the front.

We—that's Lt. Don Morgan, 27, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and I—made a sweep behind the enemy front in a small two-seater T-6 trainer plane.

Morgan is one of the air control pilots — something new in warfare — whose job is to spot targets and lead the much faster jets and Mustangs to them. I trundled along with him to see how it's done.

Circling at 1,500 feet ten to 15 miles deep into enemy territory north of the Taegu-Yongdong-Hwanggan road, the country seemed deserted. I couldn't pick out a target.

The only vehicles I saw on the roads were already blackened, gutted and motionless.

But Morgan had the advantage of special training — and the radioed suggestions of ground and liaison officers with the infantry.

Over the radio I heard him call to four F-80 jets cruising high over us:

"There is a tank or field piece that seems to be firing from the village of Yongsan about eight miles north — and they are getting some of our boys."

"Roger!" said the leader of the four jets.

There was some argument then about just where the village was. We settled that by circling the target village several times until the jets came down from the heights and saw our unarmed spotter plane.

Then they struck. It was an awesome, splendid, terrible sight — bright young men in taut, slender machines, pouring death at 500 miles an hour into an old, old town occupied by disciples of a new tyranny.

But it was people's homes that erupted in flames as well as the enemy's secreted stores of machines and ammunition and fuel.

I thought of that as the black smoke poured from places where folks were born, married and buried.

"Good work You hit a fuel dump," cried Morgan to the jets.

The jets then raked the town with rockets. They spent their last 50 caliber ammunition ripping another nearby village.

Suddenly Morgan let out a yelp. We wheeled and headed for base. "I didn't mean to scare you," Morgan said over the interphone, "but the guerrillas were firing at us. I could see the red flashes from their guns."

A little later he offered this comment: Continued on page Two

2 More to Face Atom Spy Charges

New York, July 31 (AP) The government today on the two latest suspects, a chemical engineer and his tall, blonde woman business associate, as more arrests in the near future was hinted.

The engineer, Abraham Brothman, 38, and attractive Miriam Moskowitz, 34, were scheduled for arraignment today on federal conspiracy charges linking them with an atomic spy ring for Russia.

Arrested Saturday, they brought six the number of Americans seen so far as alleged accessories in the espionage ring in which British atomic scientist Klaus Fuchs was a key figure.

Official indications were that more arrests may follow.

"We are working on some matters and this comes in the midst of them," said U. S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol. "We always have a grand jury sitting and we are starting to piece things together."

Also slated for a court hearing today was Julius Rosenberg, 32, a New York engineer accused of transmitting and arranging for others to transmit atomic secrets to Soviet agents. He was arrested July 17.

Reinforced Yanks Still Outnumbered

By ELTON C. FAY
Associated Press Reporter
Washington, July 31 (AP)—Even with the reinforcements now ashore or on the way, the United States-South Korean force still will number only about half that of the enemy's savage horde of fighters.

This is counting everything the United States has in Korea, or has announced, as earmarked for the fighting. And it is based also on the estimate of one of Gen. MacArthur's intelligence officers that the North Korean invader by "frantic" mobilization, has brought his strength up to an army of 200,000 men.

The numerical disadvantage must be overcome by firepower, air power and sea power.

The three United States army divisions, which with the South Korean army were carrying on the battle as reinforcements from the United States neared the war zone, probably numbered no more than 40,000 men. Last week some of the help started arriving, a unit of undisclosed size, rushed up from occupation forces in Okinawa as the crisis mounted.

The South Korean army, when the Communists struck on June 25, were reported to have an army of about 96,000 out of which eight divisions of about 10,000 men size were formed. There are reasons to believe that heavy casualties have cut this original force to about half.

Much of the loss occurred in the first phase of the fighting. The South Koreans were armed only with defensive weapons — no tanks, some anti-tank artillery of too small caliber, some old model bazookas that were ineffective against enemy armor. So their losses were high as tanked. Continued on page Two

Division Is Rushed Up to Battle Line

By NELMAN MORSE
Tokyo, Tuesday (AP)—A division of the U. S. 8th Army division under Maj. Gen. B. K. Reiser landed in Korea Monday, July 31, to help drive Communist forces back to the west.

General MacArthur's headquarters said the division, which is based in Japan, was rushed to the west coast of Korea.

The Communist force, 55 miles west of Pusan, U. S. base, Associated Press correspondent Hal Boyle's report from outside China's coast, said the division was rushed to the west coast of Korea.

Arriving direct from the U. S. States, many of the new troops headed out in trucks to plug a punched by North Koreans along a rectangular front from Pusan on the southeast coast.

Up to 20,000 men were reported in the big Red surge against shrinking defense area.

In the central front new troops were put on Kumchon. But a U. S. Cavalry spokesman said the city "will be held at all costs."

He said the troops were forced back slightly, but however, Kumchon is still northwest of Taegu, rail northwest of Pusan.

As the division arrived, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's top advisers, they talked with General William K. Harrison, Nationalist leader, General Harrison's command.

His visit followed a U. S. Nationalist air raid of the Chinese army's assembly area, a blow at Quemoy, said island near Amoy.

There was no indication of a raid had American troops in China (five weeks ago) his island forces had been on Chinese headquarters and their themselves were attacked.

MacArthur met a cordial reception in Formosa.

The Korean fighting spread over a rough rectangle extends 80 miles up the coast from Pusan to Yon on the west 70 miles to Hamhung 100 miles due south from Yon to the vicinity of Chongju.

Spread thinly through the mountains and valleys are three U. S. divisions — the First Cavalry, the 24th Infantry division, Fifth air force and fighting Koreans.

Disparities from the many Communist divisions strewn on the battlefield, own trucks, over the road trying to reach new positions against the Red divisions.

At least two Red divisions are now in the area, the Eighth Army in Korea, his time two days ago he died in his present position.

U. S. planes started claiming to have killed bodies were described as in the field "the general."

There was no report of a Korean, 45 miles south of Taegu, emergency capital of Korea. U. S. forces have withdrawn intact.

Reds infiltrated Hamhung around Kumchon. They killed four Americans and one officer in a schoolhouse in a mano raio. Five of the were killed. Eight Americans were wounded.

The fresh troops were not titled except as army men. The U. S. army division had been carrying on the last marine division.

Both will fight as units in the U. S. Eighth Army and not be identified otherwise high command.

The new troops were immediately sent to the front fighting line. The division was sent to the front fighting line.

ground forces chewed up their divisions and rolled southward until the first thin line of a battalion from the United States 25th division flown from Japan appeared on the scene to help.

To back up the U. S. 25th, 24th and 1st Cavalry (infantry) divisions, the United States so far has tapped only two major elements. A fortnight ago the 1st marine division pushed off from the American west coast. Sailing shortly thereafter were the initial elements of the 2nd Infantry division. Some unidentified units from other army divisions in the United States also were readied for departure.

It is doubtful if the 2nd Army and 1st Marine division, between them, contain much more than 20,000 or 23,000 men.

than the big Red smash at the center of the line.

General MacArthur's headquarters has estimated the North Korean fighting strength at 200,000 men. The United Nations force, even with the reinforcements, is far below that number.

Two days ago Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the U. S. Eighth army in Korea, told his men they must fight or die in their present positions until help came.

The strength of the arriving forces was not disclosed. Not was it revealed exactly where they landed.

They are joining three U. S. divisions from Japan, some troops already in from Okinawa and the South Koreans who are fighting alongside the Americans.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur flew to Formosa in a surprise visit with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to discuss the defense of that Nationalist Chinese bastion and general war plans.

There was some speculation here that the Chinese Communists on the mainland were poised for an early invasion of Formosa.

MacArthur was accompanied by his chief of staff and other aides. They went into immediate conference with Chiang.

The MacArthur visit to the Nationalist China stronghold followed an air raid by Nationalist Chinese on 500 Red junks assembling for a possible attack on Quemoy, island off the mainland coast.

There was no indication the Chinese raid had the approval of the U. S., which told the Nationalists three weeks ago to abandon their active combat role against the Chinese Communists except for defensive action.

Some sources in Taipei, the Nationalist capital in Formosa, say in MacArthur's visit tacit Washington approval of their action. They also said Chiang was prepared to renew his offer to send 35,000 ground troops to Korea.

France, The Netherlands, Canada and New Zealand boosted MacArthur's Korean naval forces with small warships.

The sorely needed reinforcements from the U. S. came as advancing Red troops hurled their might against the three major defense lines, plunging through one for a costly gain and hammering relentlessly at the other two.

The breakthrough was at Kuchang, vital communications center and provisional capital of South Korea. U. S. forces withdrew in tact, a field report said and held fast east of Kuchang.

If the invaders reach Taegu, they will be poised for a 55-mile drive to Pusan, where most U. S. troops and supplies are unloaded.

But U. S. forces held tight at the two other points — at Chinju south of Kuchang and between Kumchon and Hamechang to the north.

more workers left their jobs in Antwerp, Ghent and Brussels.

Socialist Leader Paul-Henri Spaak told reporters he thought Buset would get what he wanted — Leopold's abdication. But he implied, it might take time.

If that happened, Spaak said, it might be too late to avert a recurrence of last night's bloody riot in which three people were killed at Liege.

"Something must be done by this afternoon," he said, "or we may all be overtaken by events. Excited crowds, a roused by newspaper reports prematurely announcing that Leopold had decided to step down to avert civil war, milled around Socialist headquarters."

A spokesman said Premier Jean Duvieusart later today would announce whether or not a solution had been reached or the state of the negotiations with the king and the country's political parties.

The spokesman indicated that by "solution" he meant either abdication or the delegation of the king's powers to his son and heir, 18-year-old Prince Baudouin.

The spokesman added: "We seem to be approaching an easing of the situation, probably today."

Duvieusart and three cabinet ministers visited Leopold before dawn today and reportedly asked him to make a definite decision on the abdication demand. They had interrupted an emergency cabinet meeting to make the trip to Laeken palace.

Most of the cabinet is understood to favor Leopold's abdication. But some ministers reportedly thought the king should make the decision himself.

Tension which has been rising since Leopold's return from exile nine days ago reached a peak last night with the killing of three anti-Leopoldists by police who fired on demonstrators at historic Liege.

Following the violence Socialist stood to favor Leopold's abdication would break out unless the king abdicated.

First American Marines in European waters during the Revolution were those aboard the "Reprisal" which took Benjamin Franklin to France in 1776 and later captured several British prizes.

cal practice, the defense lines in Korea have been pulled in to provide more men to protect a shorter front. This is good practice. But it should be remembered that the enemy also is enabled to concentrate more of his attacking force on the shortened front, for the same reason.

4 Billion Aid for Anti-Reds to Be Asked

Washington, July 31 (AP)—President Truman today is sending a message asking $4,000,000,000 additional for military aid to anti-Communist nations.

Chairman Cannon (DMo) of the house appropriations committee said there was "unanimous agreement" among Democratic and Republican leaders to expedite action on the request.

Cannon said the estimates for the additional $4,000,000,000 will be submitted through a letter to speaker Rayburn and referred directly to the house appropriations committee which will take them up immediately.

There was agreement on procedure, he explained, under which the bill could be brought to the floor quickly.

He said the President said there is "an emergency" which requires immediate action to arm American allies.

Shortly after the White House meeting the house completed congressional action on a bill lifting manpower ceilings on the armed forces.

It approved without opposition a senate change in the house passed version which would limit the un restricted ceiling period to July 31, 1954, instead of indefinitely.

It also sent to President Truman for his signature a bill taking restrictions off warship construction.

The ship bill does not authorize new tonnage, but grants the navy freedom to charge previously authorized tonnage to such ship categories as it may consider necessary.

By lifting military manpower ceilings, congress makes room for the additional 600,000 men and of ficers provided for in the $10.5 billion requested by Mr. Truman to meet current war requirements.

Medical Society for Drafting of Young Doctors

Little Rock, July 31 (AP)—Arkansas medical society leaders think young doctors with no previous service should be drafted.

The society's council, made up of officers and district councilors, yesterday adopted a resolution urging such a draft. The resolution was sent to members of Arkansas' congressional delegation.

Miss Nancy Martin and Robert Lacy, Jr. Have Church Nuptials

Beautiful in its simplicity was the wedding of Miss Nancy Ann Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clinton Martin of this city, and Robert Thomas Lacy, Jr. son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomas Lacy, Sr. of Texarkana, Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian church in Texarkana, Arkansas.

In the presence of the immediate families, The Reverend Chauncey Farrell, pastor, officiated at the impressive single ring ceremony before an altar marked with pedestal baskets of white double stock, and snapdragons. The couple knelt on a white kneeling bench for the nuptial blessing.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a brown silk shantung dress with a matching jacket which buttoned down the front with self-covered buttons. The jacket had a tiny Peter Pan collar and three quarter length sleeves. She wore a brown velvet sugar scoop hat and brown velvet pumps. Her only ornament were cameo earrings. She pinned a green brown throated orchid at her shoulder.

Miss Betty Martin was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a champagne tulle suit, with navy accessories and a shoulder corsage of white gardenias.

Mr. Robert Thomas Lacy, Sr. served his son as best man.

Mrs. Martin, chose for her daughter's wedding, a brown and white printed silk dress with brown and white accessories. Her flowers were pink gardenias.

Mrs. Lacy, mother of the bridegroom, wore a cocoa brown silk shantung with brown accessories.

Mrs. O'Neal mother of the bride, wore a gown of twilight sheer fashioned with a strapless bodice with insets of black lace, over which she wore a matching cape with tiny Peter Pan collar. Her accessories were black lace and velvet. She wore a single gardenia at her throat.

The groom's mother chose a gown of persimmon crepe with lace-over-the skirt. Her persimmon maline hat, matching satin shoes, completed her attire. Mrs. Robins pinned green orchids at her shoulder.

The groom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. J. R. Warren, of Conway, wore a sheer print with black accessories. Here flowers were white carnations.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, following the ceremony. Arrangements of white gladioli, feverfew, maroon daisies, and plumosa fern were used in the reception rooms.

The bride's table was covered with a floor length net cloth over green taffeta. Double garlands of plumosa fern which encircled the table were caught up with showers of satin ribbons tied with marguerite daisies and fastened to the double ruffle with a single maroon daisy. Burning tapers in silver candelabra on either side of the three tiered wedding cake completed the table arrangement.

The mantle in the dining room held the same floral arrangements as the reception rooms. The buffet from which the punch was served held a massive arrangement of white stock in a silver bowl. The individual cakes were iced in pale yellow and embossed with a single daisy. The punch, which was also yellow, further carried out the yellow and white color scheme.

Mrs. B. W. Edwards, and Mrs. Ernest O'Neal, aunts of the bride, alternated with Mrs. M. M. McClohan, and Mrs. Clyde Monte in serving the cake. No Further Control Asked by Truman

Washington, July 31 (AP)—Administration leaders in congress, finding no firm White House position, were swinging today to the idea of giving President Truman standby price-wage rationing powers as well as the milder economic controls he has asked.

One Democratic leader, asking not to be quoted by name, told amendment probably will be of reporters a price-wage rationing amendment probably will be of the house floor. The house is to take up the measure tomorrow.

Under the proposal, Mr. Truman should have power to put on price and wage ceilings and begin rationing at any time he felt they were needed.

Some administration men felt that unless standby powers were given the President, congress might vote a wage-price "freeze" as proposed by Rep. Kunkel (R. Pa.).

Senator Maybank (DSC) said it was his understanding that President Truman was leaving the question up to congress. He said the senate banking committee would approach the issue on that basis when it votes tomorrow on the administration bill. Maybank heads the committee.

House Speaker Rayburn, one of a group of leaders who talked the matter over with Mr. Truman, said the President felt he had asked for enough economic controls but wouldn't veto a bill providing extra ones.

Congressional leaders discussed the question of domestic controls with Mr. Truman because of rising sentiment in congress to go beyond the steps he has suggested.

Many legislators want to provide at least standby authority for price and wage controls and rationing.

Rayburn, Texas Democrat, was asked what the President might do if congress voted him the extra authority.

He said: "I don't think he would veto a bill on that account."

Rayburn said neither he nor any other Democratic leaders went so far as to tell Mr. Truman he might get a bill with extra controls.

Those in on the controls discussion besides Rayburn were Vice President Barkley, senate Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois, and House Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts.

At the Capitol, Senator Maybank (D-SC) said the White House staff is studying the question of a broad home front mobilization bill to include standby power to invoke wage, price and rationing controls.

Maybank is chairman of the senate banking committee which handles control legislation. He said the White House study is being made at his request. He added that a decision had been reached after a series of conferences over the week-end.

Maybank said he had not talked to President Truman himself about the matter.

Mr. Truman has said there is no need at this time for a more drastic home front mobilization than steps he proposed in his message to congress July 19.

The bill Mr. Truman submitted then does not call for wage-price controls or for rationing.

Since that time there has been a growing clamor among the lawmakers for far broader and more stringent curbs on the civilian economy.

Democratic leaders in congress want, however, to get at least a go-ahead nod from the President before broadening the administration's bill.

Dear Miss Dix: My husband has recently died and as he left me without any means of support I am compelled to go to live with my married daughter. How should I treat my son-in-law, and how should he treat me?

A DAUGHTER'S MOTHER

Answer: Your son-in-law should treat you with the respect and affection that he would show his own mother.

If your son-in-law loves his wife, he should look upon you as his benefactor for no woman, not even his own mother, does more to promote a man's welfare and happiness than the one who provides him with a good wife.

Many years of work and anxiety and sacrifice go into the rearing of a girl and the mother who does that task well and who fits her daughter to be a real helpmate and companion to a man has done him a service that he never can really repay and which entitles her to his everlasting gratitude.

Adapt To Household

Treat your son-in-law as an appreciative guest what, as a guest, you must adapt yourself to the ways of the household and not try to run it according to your own ideals. The things makes old women such a pest and causes people to dread having them around is that they cannot resist rounding and sticking their fingers into everybody's pies. They never realize that their in-laws have a right to their own taste and their own ways and their own opinions.

Don't meddle. Don't lecture. Don't criticize. Just remember that you haven't any more right to police your son-in-law than you have any other man that you have no sacred mission to reform him. Keep your hands off his affairs and your tongue off his faults and pay for your board and keep by making yourself agreeable.

And learn to do the vanishing act. Don't always be under foot. Don't always camp on the back seat of the automobile and have to be dragged out everywhere your son-in-law and his wife go. A man likes to be alone with his wife sometimes and to go off on a spree just with her. Spend some of your evenings in your own room reading or crocheting or playing solitaire.

Use tact in getting along with your son-in-law. In a word, treat him as you would your host.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am in a terrible predicament and would greatly appreciate your advice. My parents are sending me to dramatic school, after which they plan a long stage career for me. I know how perfectly marvelous that would be, but I am in love with a missionary. We had planned to travel together through the heathen countries spreading christianity and happiness in our wake. Do you think it better to begin the career that will please my parents, or to follow the path of hardships with the man I love?

Answer: I would suggest that before you do either you come down out of your castle of dreams and get your feet on the hard old earth and try to see things as they are, instead of as you and your deluded parents imagine them to be.

To begin with, what makes you think that going to a dramatic school will insure you a brilliant and successful career? Thousands of girls take courses in acting every year and most of them are never heard of again. No other profession in the world is so full of disappointments and so precarious as acting, and any one is foolish to enter it to whom God has not given a great talent, who has not such a call to the work that nothing else on earth seems worth doing, and who is not willing to put in years upon years of grinding intensive work and study upon her art.

I certainly think you will have a far better chance of happiness in

Truman and Landon Figure in State Vote

By the Associated Press

President Truman and former Gov. Alf M. Landon, the 1936 GOP presidential nominee, have taken a hand in primary elections tomorrow in Missouri and Kansas.

Mr. Truman has staked home state prestige on his support of state Senator Emory W. Allison for the Democratic senatorial nomination to oppose Missouri's Republican Senator Donnell.

Allison's chief primary opponent is former Rep. Thomas C. Hennings Jr., who has struck out at what he calls "Pendergastism" and the president's "intervention" in the primary.

Donnell has three opponents in the Republican primary but is expected to win easily.

In Kansas, Landon is bidding indirectly for a comeback to political power with support of Willard Mayberry, his former secretary, for the Republican nomination for governor.

The forces of Gov. Frank Carlson and Senator Harry Darby are backing Edward F. Arn, former state attorney general. As national committeeman, Darby wrested the Kansas delegation away from Landon and has given the former presidential nominee no voice in the choice of GOP presidential candidates.

The governor appoints the party's state chairman and thus the primary winner — if he wins in November, can control the state party machinery.

Carlson himself is a candidate for the GOP senatorial nomination, since Darby, a Carlson appointee, did not choose to run. The governor isopposed by Harry W. Colmery, former national commander of the American legion.

Paul Aiken, former assistant postmaster general, is running for the Democratic senatorial nomination against anti-Roosevelt, Democratic national committeeman who, opposed, president Truman's nomination in the early stages of the 1948 party national convention.

Virginia and West Virginia voters choose house candidates in primaries tomorrow, with interest centering on a bid of former Democratic Senator Rush Holt to capture the Republican nomination for congress in the Third West

Leslie S. Ladd, Jr., of 34 Cleveland Avenue, Nashville, Tenn., sure knows his HADACOL. He, his mother and his grandfather get precious Vitamin B1, B2, Niacin and Iron from this family product.

"Mamma, we haven't taken our HADACOL," says Leslie when his mother forgets sometimes. Mrs. Ladd explains, however, that hers will always be a HADACOL family because it has helped relieve deficiencies of Vitamin B1, B2, Niacin and Iron for herself, little Leslie and her father.

TAKES 10 BOTTLES

Read Mrs. Ladd's own statement of their experiences once they learned that they were suffering from such deficiencies and began taking HADACOL: "I have taken 10 bottles of HADACOL. I have been run down since my oldest son was born. I am 23 years old. I have had very little appetite and I feel weak every morning. I would almost faint but after taking HADACOL they are gone and I stay hungry all the time."

"My four-year-old son had little appetite and his cheeks were pale. He now takes HADACOL and his cheeks are rosy and he has a wonderful appetite. I also had gastric disturbances, but they are gone now. My father took HADACOL for the agonizing aches and pains of neuritis. He is much better now."

WONDERFUL HADACOL FEELING

HADACOL is that wonderful new formula for relieving indigestion, stomach disturbances (gas, heartburn, sour "risings" after meals), also recommended for normal growth in children, as well as that general run-down condition, and aches and pains of neuritis. If your system lacks Vitamin B1, B2, Iron and Niacin.

HADACOL is being recommended by many doctors. HADACOL is so amazingly successful because it relieves the cause of your trouble due to such deficiencies. That's the kind of product you want — the kind you should buy — the kind you should start taking immediately.

Only One Genuine HADACOL. Don't go through life suffering such fiendish torture from your stomach or aches and pains of neuritis, when relief is as close at hand as your nearest drugstore. Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. There's only one true and genuine HADACOL.

A STITCH JUST IN TIME—This is the Betsy Ross story of 1950. Employees of the Annin Company, flag-makers in New York, push through new copies of the light blue and white United Nations emblem to be rushed to General MacArthur for use in Korea. The UN's own flag supply was nearly exhausted when authorization was given General MacArthur to fly the world banner in the anti-Red campaign in Korea.

State Rights Faction Takes Bad Beating

By CHARLES BARRETT

Atlanta, July 31 (AP)—States rights Democrats are reeling but undaunted after a series of sharp reverses in southern Democratic primaries.

Opponents say the movement, which took four states from President Truman in 1948, is a dead duck — proven to lack grass-roots voter support.

States Righters lay their losses to other causes. They predict they will recoup and even expand to new fields.

Dixie voters seem to be moving in both directions at once. Despite defeat of conservative states righters, unusually bitter recent Virginia district.

Tennessee picks house candidates in a Thursday primary, with local interest high in the bid of former Rep. Carroll Reece, to regain the seat in the First District he gave up when he served for a time as Republican national chairman.

Reece is opposing Rep. Dayton E. Phillips for the Republican nomination. Phillips succeeded him in the house.

Kentucky voters choose senatorial nominees Saturday, with Gov. Earle Clements battling Glenn Hatcher, secretary of state, for the Democratic nomination to succeed Senator Withers, appointee who didn't run.

The Republican senatorial race seemed to be between Charles L. Dawson, former state attorney general who served for a time as the coal operators' representative on the United Mine workers pension fund, and Charles E. Whittle, former public service commissioner.

campaigns ousted two standouts Southern liberals — Senators Graham (D-Nc) and Pepper (D-Fla.).

Increased use of civil rights and racial issues as vote winners was noted in both these states.

The best conclusions seem to be:

1. There is no upsurge of liberalism in the South this year. Opposition to President Truman's civil rights program, the spark that lit the states rights revolt is as fierce as ever.

2. Southerners generally still are stepped in loyalty to the regular Democratic party, a 70-year tradition. The "fight it out within the party" creed is growing. Every winning southern senator this summer has supported this view.

The first and most direct blow to states righters came back in May. Alabama, one of the four states to revolt in 1948, had a clear-cut choice. Voters elected 43 regular Democrats, 28 states righters, to their Democratic executive committee. (Four loyalist seats are being contested in court.)

Then came South Carolina, another 1948 insurgent. The states rights presidential candidate, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, tried to oust Senator Olin Johnston, a party loyalist. That was the chief disagreement between them and Thurmond was licked.

Another blow came last Tuesday in Arkansas. Former Gov. Ben Laney, a founder and now chairman of the states righters' national committee, was beaten overwhelmingly in the governor's race by pro-Truman Sid McMath.

Crowed McMath: "This will kill the Dixiecrat movement x x x space Arkansas was definitely a target state and they obviously spent money here. It is obvious they are dead."

Said Laney: "We were fighting for a principle which we considered right. Apparently, the majority of the people of this state have disagreed with our viewpoint."

Atlanta constitution agreed with McMath that he states righters as a separate movement are dead. But he added, in an interview, "sentiment for states rights persists in the South and it would be a mistake to assume otherwise."

"The South will turn to a new approach, and new leaders, to express this sentiment. I wouldn't be surprised to see Jimmy Byrnes (former 'assistant president,' 'now governor-nominate in South Carolina) lead the fight within the regular Democratic party."

Local Races Featured in Runoff Vote

By The Associated Press

The major campaign song has ended but the un-melodious election discontent lingers on.

With the biggest issue in Arkansas' biennial balloting, the governor's race, settled last Tuesday, political interest has settled back to largely a local level, and there:

All ballots in Conway county were impounded in a dispute over the sheriff's race.

Charges of irregularities were hurled in Clark county sheriff's race.

A row flared in Pulaski county Democratic committee over an issue that figured in the governor's race—Dixiecrats vs. regular Democrats.

An unsuccessful candidate in the Pulaski county race for state senator denied reports that he would openly support the runner-up.

And speculation mounted over the effect of a canvass being conducted by Governor McMath's campaign headquarters to determine "individuals who constituted the opposition" in counties and townships.

Conway County Sheriff D. E. Thomas, defeated for re-nomination by County Treasurer Marlin Hawkins, brought about impounding of the Conway county ballots. The county central committee rejected his request for a recount and certified Hawkins as the nominee by a vote of 2,382 to 2,164.

Thomas, who has asked for a recount in Cedar Falls township and ward three, Morrilton, petitioned Circuit Judge Audrey Strait, who ordered all ballots impounded pending further action. Thomas said he would file a contest also challenging the county's absentee vote.

The Clark county dispute flared at a meeting of the county central committee which certified Sheriff Andrew Widener and Howard Arnold as candidates for sheriff in the Aug. 8 primary. The committee reported 2,052 votes for Widener and 1,997 for Arnold.

A group of Whelen Springs appeared at the meeting to charge irregularities there. Nine of them filed a statement that they voted for Arnold while returns showed him with only three votes in that box. Before the protest, Tom Wells, Whelen Springs committeeman, at whose store the polling booth was located, offered a motion, which was adopted, to move the polling place from his store to the school.

Charges that "Dixiecrats" are trying to exclude the "true Democrats" were hurled in the Pulaski county committee controversy. It flared Friday when the committee announced a handpicked list of candidates for membership on the new committee.

J. R. Riley, Little Rock insurance man, who attempted to challenge the list, was silenced by a preliminary maneuver to shut off debate, and the list was approved.
